Barry, Rocky Ending Drives In California

Bitter Charges Are Heard with Final Vote Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller directed final appeals to the voters today in an explosive windup to California's presidential primary.

Bitter charges of "smear" and "irresponsibility" between the rival camps sharpened the vital race for the state's 86 Republican national convention delegates in Tuesday's balloting.

Both sides, in traditional fashion, expressed confidence in the outcome of a battle which Rockefeller says will shape the future course of the Republican party.

The polls have lifted Rockefeller to frontrunner from the underdog rating he had before his surprise victory in Oregon. But the pulse-takers cushioned their figures with enough undecided voters to swing the election either way.

That was true, too, in the torrid clash between Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, and State Controller Alan Cranston in a wholesale Democratic contest for the U.S. Senate nomination.

The primary, which started out as a ho-hum affair, is expected to bring out 65 per cent of the 7,122,724 registered voters. The total includes 4,022,302 Democrats, 2,895,448 Republicans.

The feverish tempo of the closing weeks matched the infighting over who is going to control the two parties in the state.

Rockefeller, who flew to New York just in time for the birth of a son Saturday, returns for a 12-hour series of airport rallies at 14 cities.

Goldwater flew to Washington for the graduation of his daughter Peggy, 19, from Mt. Vernon Junior College and to deliver the commencement address. He is due back tonight for an election-day rally in Los Angeles.

Assassination Probe Report Is Awaited

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Warren Commission's report on President John F. Kennedy's assassination is expected to substantiate the original FBI finding that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, murdered Kennedy.

The commission has completed its basic work and set the end of the month as the target date for a report expected to detail the evidence that Oswald was the assassin and acted alone.

The commission plans to call several more witnesses including Kennedy's widow, who will testify at a secret time and place. She was riding in the car with her husband when he was shot in Dallas last Nov. 22.

Commission staff groups are drafting separately the segments of what may be a 500-page report. With its supporting documents and testimony, the report is expected to rival in extent and size the massive report of the Pearl Harbor commission after World War II.

Senate Slated To Resume Its Civil Rights Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate enters today what most of its members expect will be the climactic month of the historic 1964 civil rights debate.

Today's session, the 67th on the House-passed civil rights bill, was expected to be low-key, however, because senators are straggling back to the Capitol after a three-day Memorial Day recess.

'Required' Prayer Is Again Banned

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled again today that required prayer and Bible reading in public schools is unconstitutional.

It did so in overturning a Florida court decision with regard to Miami's public schools. The tribunal cited its 1963 decision in a similar case from Abington Township in Pennsylvania.

In the Abington case, and also in a case from Maryland, the Supreme Court, last year, held that required Bible reading and prayer exercises are unconstitutional.

Florida's Supreme Court, in the decision overturned today, said that state's law requiring Bible reading was based on secular rather than sectarian considerations, and was intended to require moral training and inculcation of good citizenship.

The highest tribunal, in an unsigned order today, said it was reversing the Florida court with respect to issues of constitutionality of prayer and Bible reading in schools.

It said other questions raised in the case were not ruled on. These included validity of religious baccalaureate programs, the taking of a religious census among students, and conducting religious tests as a qualification for employment of teachers.

These latter issues, the Supreme Court said, did not have "properly presented federal questions."

Johnson Presses Rallying Cry: Join in Building 'Great Society'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson is making a determined effort to identify his administration with a quest for what he terms "the great society."

Johnson gave new evidence of his attachment to this label during a four-day holiday weekend trip to New York and Texas. The President, who flew back to Washington Sunday night, delivered four speeches during the trip and, in three of them, he talked about "the great society."

This repetitive emphasis points up Johnson's hope that the public eventually will link his name with the term—much as Franklin D. Roosevelt was associated with the New Deal, Harry S. Truman with the Fair Deal and John F. Kennedy with the New Frontier.

Some Johnson aides say privately the concept of "the great society," as the President has expressed it, is more typical of his view of the role of government than anything he has done as chief executive.

However, they emphasize the concrete aspects of the concept — rebuilt cities, flourishing schools, conservation programs and the elimination of poverty — rather than the abstractions which have embellished Johnson's speeches on the subject.

They argue that, throughout his political life, Johnson has been intrigued by the notion of revitalizing the economy of entire regions through rural electrification, power projects, reforestation, job retraining and the like.

Johnson first talked in detail about "the great society" in his May 22 commencement address at the University of Michigan.

In that speech, he urged his youthful audience to join in helping to rebuild cities, preserve the countryside and promote education. He cited these as central challenges facing the nation.

At the same time, he talked about a society in which men are concerned more about the quality of their goals than the quantity of their goods, about an unspoiled land where man can commune with nature.

For a time, Johnson toyed with the phrase "better deal"—words he first used off-the-cuff in a television interview. This phrase was dropped after a brief

Young Negroes Bring Violence To New York

Marauders Raid Subway Trains, Rob Passengers

NEW YORK (AP)—Bands of teen - aged Negro marauders, raiding subway trains and a ferry boat, brought terror to normally quiet sections of Brooklyn and lower Manhattan over the weekend.

Early Sunday 20 youths stormed aboard a subway train en route from Coney Island in Brooklyn and terrorized and robbed passengers.

The youths, many of them reeking with alcohol, left the train at Kings Highway, Brooklyn, after smashing windows and light bulbs.

They ran to the street, smashed the window of a beauty parlor and stole about $90 from the cash register.

Residents of the district, which is predominantly white, reacted with anger and a street clash was narrowly averted.

About 40 persons poured out of homes and a bar and began "passing remarks," said detective Raymond Sheerin.

Sheerin continued: "They wanted to do something. It was like they were trying to say to us, 'Let us have them for a little while' or something to that effect."

Sheerin was among officers in 11 cars which sped to the area. Twelve of the youths were arrested.

Less than two hours earlier, two men and two youths cowed the motorman aboard a subway train near Prospect Park in Brooklyn. They threatened the motorman with a meat cleaver.

Police said the four got off at Prospect Park, boarded another train, and threatened passengers with the cleaver. One passenger Clifford Renaus, 24, pulled the emergency cord as the train rolled into a station. He ran from the car and called police from the cashier's booth. Police got there in time to grab the four.

Sunday night, five Negro teenagers attacked a white youth on a train in lower Manhattan, beating him and knocking him in the shoulder. All five teenagers were arrested.

On Saturday night about 25 youths went wild on a ferry en route from Staten Island to Manhattan. Shouting, dancing and terrorizing passengers, they swept food and drinks off the refreshment counter, stole candy and took $90 from the cash register.

Friday night, a white school teacher, Miss Charlotte Lipski, 38, was raped and killed in the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn. A group of ultra-orthodox Hasidic Jews have formed a private radio-car police patrol in that area in an effort to curb nighttime terrorism.

Bolivia's Chieftain Returned to Post

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—President Victor Paz Estenssoro, the only candidate, was re-elected Sunday, but counting of blank ballots was awaited today for an indication of the strength of his opposition.

With voting mandatory for men over 19 and women over 21, the number of unmarked ballots, as urged by the president's opponents, would indicate Paz' support or lack of it.

About one million persons were eligible to vote.

Paz, 56, told supporters at a victory party Sunday night his re-election proved the people want tranquility.

Judy Garland Leaves Hong Kong Hospital

HONG KONG (AP)—Judy Garland walked out of the hospital today but said "I am still very weak. I am going to take a long rest."

The singer, who fell into a coma last Wednesday, was accompanied by her personal physician, Dr. Lee Siegel of Hollywood, and her traveling companion, actor Mark Herron.

Siegel said Miss Garland, 41, was suffering from pleurisy but added: "I think she is well enough to leave the hospital and take a rest in her hotel."

Holiday Toll Hits Record

Dead on Highways Tops 400 Figure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's traffic deaths during the Memorial Day weekend—more than 400—hit a record high for a three-day observance of the holiday.

The death toll on the highways from 6 p.m. local time Thursday to midnight Sunday was 429. Belated reports were expected to boost the final figure.

The record toll for the first holiday weekend of the spring topped the previous high mark of 371 set over the Memorial Day period in 1958. The National Safety Council had made a preholiday estimate that between 410 and 490 persons might be killed in traffic accidents during the 78-hour period.

The heaviest toll was Sunday as millions of motorists jammed highways headed for home after outings. Reports indicate nearly 150 persons were killed in traffic accidents in the final 24 hours of the holiday period.

Traffic fatalities during the holiday period compared to 418 traffic deaths during a nonholiday weekend of 78 hours, from 6 p.m. Thursday, May 14 to midnight Sunday, May 17. The Associated Press survey for the nonholiday period also showed 23 deaths in boating accidents and 73 persons drowned, a total of 514. Boating deaths during the holiday period totaled 16 while 40 persons drowned.

At least 16 deaths on Ohio's roads during the holiday weekend were reported to the Associated Press. State highway safety officials had predicted that 23 persons would perish in traffic mishaps.

The toll was not only less than had been predicted but also was below normal for a non-holiday weekend. Two weeks ago the Associated Press, for comparison purposes, made a survey of traffic deaths over a similar 78-hour period. Seventeen fatalities were counted over that weekend.

Canal Street Loses Its Old Trolleys

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Shiny, new air-conditioned buses operated today in place of ancient streetcars on Canal Street—this historic old city's main thoroughfare.

The buses took over Sunday. Streetcar No. 958, the last trolley in service, rumbled along on its pre-dawn run Sunday with a shrieking, singing crowd aboard. Everywhere it passed a bus, the riders leaned out the streetcar windows to boo and hiss.

Members of Streetcars Desires, Inc., placed a wreath beside the tracks. Its blue ribbon proclaimed: "Canal streetcars. Gone, but not forever."

The city has one streetcar line left. It operates along St. Charles Avenue.

18 Nations Plan Aid to Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—President Johnson's call for more flags to support the war effort in South Viet Nam has brought favorable responses from more than 18 nations, but the United States will continue shouldering the biggest proportion of the burden.

The United States provides 97 per cent of the foreign aid received by the government of South Viet Nam. The aid expected from other countries is not likely to reduce this percentage. It will probably increase.

Officials say responses received so far from other nations range from "encouraging" to "enthusiastic." But most have been in general terms, and discussions are still in the initial stage.

Most of the aid is expected to be economic, technical and medical. It will be aimed at the rural population and tailored to their needs.

Officials concede that the aid other countries contribute probably will continue to be a drop in the bucket compared to the U.S. effort. But it may have an important symbolic value.

"It will broaden the base of free world support for the war effort in South Viet Nam and help counter charges that this is an American war," one official said.

The United States maintains about 16,000 military men in South Viet Nam and is pouring $500 million a year into the country in military and economic aid. It has recently promised an additional $125 million.

The next biggest contributor, France, has provided an average of $5 million a year over the last 10 years in economic, technical and cultural aid.

Contributions of all the other nations combined total less than $10 million a year.

This includes contributions from Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Japan, Nationalist China, West Germany and Great Britain.

RFK Shuns Effort Naming Him as Veep

NEW YORK (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has disavowed in writing two slates of candidates for delegates to the Democratic National Convention pledged to support him for the vice presidential nomination.

Kennedy, reiterating his support of President Johnson for election, said convention delegates should await Johnson's advice before committing themselves on a running mate.

Kennedy's position was more emphatic than his previous efforts to head off any campaign to get the vice presidential nomination for him.

Edward N. Costikyan, New York County (Manhattan) Democratic leader, made public Sunday this telegram from Kennedy:

"I would like to re-emphasize that the two slates of national convention delegates, running in your county in the June 2nd primary as pledged to me for the vice-presidential nomination mounted their campaign without my knowledge and are running without my approval.

"As I have already indicated to the press, I have discouraged all efforts of this kind. I support President Johnson and his program and believe that the delegates to the national convention should await his advice before committing themselves to one or another of his potential running mates."

The candidates pledged to Kennedy in Tuesday's primary also back Johnson.

Laos Reds Bury Merger

Last Tie Severed With Neutralists

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Communist Pathet Lao severed its last ties today with neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma's regime, burying the fiction of a coalition government uniting all Laotian factions.

The Pathet Lao announced it is withdrawing its remaining government officials from Vientiane, the rightist-controlled administrative capital.

An announcement by the Pathet Lao radio said the Communists no longer recognize Souvanna Phouma as premier. It said the two remaining Pathet Lao Cabinet members, Secretary of State for Public Works Soukvangsak and Secretary of State for Economy Khamphouane Tounalon, would leave the capital.

The two officials have stayed with the Polish delegation to the International Control Commission for the past three weeks, claiming their lives were endangered.

The Pathet Lao asked the commission to assist in the departure of the officials.

"Prince Souvanna Phouma is now only a prisoner held by the United States and their lackeys," the Pathet Lao said.

"Therefore, he no longer holds the title of premier of the legitimate national union government."

Observers in Tokyo believe the Pathet Lao, which controls about two-thirds of Laos, may establish a rival government of Communists and dissident neopatriots.

Loyalty Oath Ruled Illegal By Tribunal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court struck down today two Washington state laws requiring that all state employees take loyalty oaths.

Justice Byron R. White, delivering the court's decision, said the laws were "unconstitutionally vague."

About 64 persons employed by the University of Washington in teaching and nonteaching jobs had challenged validity of the state laws.

They appealed from a decision by a special three-judge U.S. District Court in Seattle, Wash., that upheld the state requirement.

One law, enacted in 1955, requires state employees to swear they are not subversive persons, as defined in the law. The other law, enacted in 1931, requires that another oath be taken by teachers.

White's majority opinion said the university employees contended before the Supreme Court that the oath requirements, and the statutory provisions on which they were based, were invalid on their face, because their language was unduly vague, uncertain and broad.

White stated: "We agree with this contention and therefore, without reaching the numerous other contentions pressed upon us, confine our consideration to that particular question."

Key Officials Talk in Hawaii

Final Decision Up to President

HONOLULU (AP)—Top U.S. strategists opened secret talks on Communist-plagued Southeast Asia today as the shaky coalition government of Laos appeared to be falling apart.

The virtual pullout of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao from a patched-up coalition with Laotian neutralists and rightists deepened the crisis atmosphere surrounding the talks.

Just about every key American official concerned with Southeast Asia was present for the two-day conference behind closed doors at Pacific Command headquarters overlooking Pearl Harbor.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge flew in from Saigon Sunday and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara arrived from Washington twelve hours later.

McNamara called the meeting "particularly timely" in view of increases in tempo and intensity of communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

He charged that Communist North Viet Nam is directing attacks in both Laos and South Viet Nam.

Lodge declared the situation in South Viet Nam is certainly not hopeless.

The final decision maker—President Johnson—waited in Washington for recommendations that could lead to military pressures against Communist North Viet Nam, source of much of the trouble in Laos and South Viet Nam.

Any decision involving military moves would mark a significant turn in U.S. policy, (Continued on Page Two)

Labor Strife End Hinted in Hillsdale

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—In a marathon, 17½-hour session, negotiators today reached first agreements on issues in the violence-plagued Essex Wire Corp. strike at Hillsdale, Mich.

"We see the possibility of a solution," the state labor mediation board chairman, Malcolm Lovell Jr., said.

Details of agreements were not disclosed.

The report of initial agreements—the first in the 3-month-old strike—came as National Guardsmen patrolled Hillsdale for the fifth day.

Key Officials

It was understood that U.S. officials have been considering seriously a variety of possible pressures, ranging from demonstrations of strength outside North Viet Nam to more direct military moves as a guerrilla counter-offensive.

Official American quarters now tend to consider the problems of Laos and South Viet Nam in tandem - rather than separately - as targets of the same Communist threat facing all of Southeast Asia.

Since Pathet Lao forces in Laos began a spring push several weeks ago, there has been a noticeable hardening of U.S. official thinking on North Viet Nam.

North Viet Nam is supplying men, arms and equipment to insurgents in both Laos and South Viet Nam. Looming behind North Viet Nam is Communist China.

The United States has been trying to get across the point that it intends to stay in Southeast Asia - that it will never withdraw while nations there want help.

It also has been trying through the medium of official statements, to bring home to the North Vietnamese that they are asking for trouble by continuing to support Communist rebellions in neighboring countries.

In Washington, Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., says the Johnson administration is mapping plans to carry the Vietnamese war into Communist North Viet Nam.

But Laird, who heads the Republican National Convention's platform committee, stopped short of saying the administration would actually use such plans.

Asked about Laird's statement, made Sunday on a recorded radio interview, a State Department spokesman said it is U.S. policy to take whatever steps may be necessary to protect Southeast Asia from a Communist takeover.

Robert H. Huffer, local attorney representing former policeman Charles L. Tomlinson Jr., has dismissed a similar case against Miller Fissell, safety director. The older of the two cases was dismissed due to a technical point of law.

The new petition states that Tomlinson had met requirements for the vacancy on the police force that has existed since he quit the post in June of 1963. Tomlinson claims that Fissell has refused to reinstate him, although the Circleville Civil Service Commission consented to his reinstatement.

The mandamus action is a legal procedure asking the court to order a public employee to perform duties of his office as prescribed by law.

Judge Ammer has signed the alternate writ. A hearing date of 10 a. m. June 19 has been set down which will give Fissell an opportunity to show cause for refusal to reinstate Tomlinson.

City Loan

"WHEN MONEY IS THE QUESTION CITY LOAN IS THE ANSWER"

Court Finds In Favor of Loan Firm

An agreement was reached Friday in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court by parties of two city financial institutions concerning the controversial employment of a local man.

The City Loan and Savings Co. with local offices on W. Main St., was opposing The Third National Bank in the court action.

The bank had employed Robert M. Chapman, 111 Seyfert Ave., who was a former employee of the loan firm.

According to a contract between Chapman and the loan firm, he was not to work for a competitive business within a 25-mile radius until after March 1, 1965.

Plaintiffs of the action filed a motion for a temporary injunction. After one day's testimony, the court and representatives of both parties entered upon an agreement which led to the court's finding the contract between Chapman and the loan firm to be "valid and binding".

The court also found Chapman to be in violation of the contract's terms.

Terms of the agreement between the two financial institutions prohibits Chapman from contacting any individual in Pickaway County for the purpose of promoting or making a consumer or installment loan.

Attorneys for the defense were of the law firm of Crist, Davis and Weldon. The firm of Meredith, Meredith and Tait, with J. W. Adkins Jr., as local attorney, represented City Loan.

Officer Suspended From Police Force

An indefinite suspension was handed a city police patrolman today by Chief Robert Temple.

Facing the suspension is Patrolman Larry Pontious. He is accused of sleeping while on duty at the police headquarters desk.

Chief Temple said Safety Director Miller Fissell will conduct a hearing on the accusation within the next few days.

Pontious was handed a five-day suspension on April 9 of this year for what Chief Temple described as disciplinary reasons.

Germans Kept Guessing About D-Day in 1944

EDITOR'S NOTE—Gen Guenther Blumentritt was chief of staff at German headquarters in France on D-Day. Now 72 and a military historian, Blumentritt tells here the events leading up to and including D-Day, as seen by a German expert.

By Gen. Guenther Blumentritt
MUNICH, Germany (AP)—From 1943 on we were certain that the Western Allies would come. We knew that the Russians were pressing for action they hoped would bring them relief in the east.

But just where the Western landing would be made was anybody's guess. We had to defend 1,200 miles of French, Belgian and Dutch coastal lines. There was ample choice for the invading forces to pick the right spot.

Coastal fortifications differed grossly in strength. They were strongest in Holland, on both sides of Calais and on both sides of the River Somme. They were very weak in Normandy and weaker yet in southern France.

Field Marshal (Gerd) von Rundstedt thought little of the German coastal defense system, the "Atlantikwall." To him it was all bluff. The field marshal was the "OB West", the German commander in chief on the Western Front. He was a true grandseigneur, a soldier who held high the old traditions, and a brilliant strategist. I was his chief of staff.

Under his command were Groups "B", headed by the young, able Field Marshal Erwin Rommel who earlier had led the Afrika Korps, and "C" commanded by Col. Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz. Army group "B" controlled the coastal section from the Netherlands to St. Nazaire, at the mouth of the River Loire.

"G" was to defend the remaining stretch of the French Atlantic coast and the French Mediterranean coast.

Rommel's idea was to line up all of his armored divisions right behind the coastal front of his section. This, he argued, would permit them to go immediately into action in case of an Allied invasion.

Rommel had experienced the vast Allied air superiority in Africa. He was convinced that the same situation would prevail during an Allied invasion on the Western Front and that this would prevent armored movements over greater distances.

Rundstedt, in turn, had always believed in mobile operations. He was opposed to rigid coastal defense. He wanted to assemble the bulk of armored strength in the Paris area, and attack the Allies when they were far enough removed from the coastal bases and no longer had the support of the heavy naval artillery.

Hitler decided in favor of Rommel's plan. But he, too, wanted to keep some reserves in the rear. Thus, the two strongest panzer divisions, Lehr-division and SS-Division Hitlerjugend, were stationed west of Paris and remained under Hitler's command. They were to play an important role on invasion day.

What did we know of the enemy at that time? Actually, we know very little. Air and navy reconnaissance, spies, agents etc., supplied strongly contrasting reports. We did not know until the spring of 1944 when and where the Allies would come. For 18 months, the OB West received warnings which differed completely: landing will be in the Netherlands, landing in Belgium, in Normandy, in Brittany, at the Bay of Biscay on the Mediterranean coast.

Beginning in 1944, the situation became a little clearer. The German High Command gradually became convinced that the invasion would come in the month of May. Hitler correctly guessed that it would be in Normandy. But what was real, what was forged? Rundstedt and I believed that the Allies would attack north of the Somme River, because this was the shortest route to north Germany. Normandy could possibly become the scene of a feint attack.

What did we have available for fighting the invading Allies? Field Marshal von Rundstedt had under his command a total of 59 divisions — 32 stationary coastal divisions, 17 normal infantry divisions and ten panzer (armored) divisions. The units varied considerably in strength and equipment.

The weakest and worst equipped among them were the coastal divisions. Artillery was horsedrawn.

Our air force comprised nearly 320 planes. Hitler had promised 1,000 (Messerschmitt) jet fighters, but they never arrived. Thus, there were 28 Allied aircraft for every single German plane on invasion day. Our air reconnaissance was only rarely able to penetrate behind the Allied anti-aircraft system. Thus we lacked details about D-Day preparations.

In fact, our aerial reconnaissance was so "blind" that it did not even spot the Allied landing force which had sailed off from southern England in the morning of June 4, 1944, but was recalled because of bad weather.

On that June 4, tension was amounting at the OB West headquarters in St. Germain, just northwest of Paris. One felt there was something in the air. The Allied air raids became more and more numerous. There was a sharp increase in the sabotage actions by the French resistance.

On June 5, an Allied radio message was picked up. It was a coded warning to the French resistance that the landing was imminent. Our troops were immediately put on alert. Hitler's headquarters was informed of the situation.

The first reports which arrived that night about paratroop landings near Caen and Carentan were pretty vague. In the early morning hours of June 6, the situation became clearer. American airborne troops had landed north of Carentan (82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions).

But they met with stiff resistance. They ran into the 352nd German Infantry Division which, by sheer coincidence, had been concentrated in that area for a training exercise. It almost seemed to us that the American landing had failed. Eventually, the superior strength made itself felt. Farther to the east, near Caen, the British 6th Air Division was more successful. They faced the brave, but very weak, German 716th Coastal Division which had to defend a broad section.

Were these landings really the actual invasion or were they just a large-scale feint while the actual invasion was to come farther east on the Somme? These doubts were to keep us concerned for several more days!

The first large Allied landing then came at dawn on June 6. The obstacles constructed on orders of the imaginative Rommel in the water and on the beach really paid off. The Allied infantry had a tough job. Many soldiers were seasick. Both sides fought heroically, both did their utmost.

Field Marshal Rommel was away from his headquarters at the time of the landing. He was in south Germany to visit his wife and, above all, to report to Hitler, outlining the gravity of the situation. Rommel returned to his command post in the late afternoon.

Meanwhile, Field Marshal von Rundstedt had sent an urgent request to Hitler's headquarters in the early morning hours. He sought permission to rush the "Hitler reserves"—the two elite panzer divisions stationed west of Paris — to the front.

But Hitler, used to working late, was asleep. His aides refused to wake him up. Precious hours were lost. In the afternoon, at about 4 p.m., Hitler finally gave the go-ahead. The panzer divisions immediately left for the front. But Allied air raids made it impossible for them to reach the front before June 7 or 8. And that was too late!

On the late evening of June 6, it became clear to us that the invasion was successful and irreparable.

Joey Bishop's Holdout Brings Desired TV Pact

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "They ought to give me an Emmy," says Joey Bishop with a rueful smile, "for the most - canceled show in television."

The usually grim - panned Bishop can afford a smile, having braved his third cancellation in three years. He'll be back for a fourth season following network dealing as complicated as a Perry Mason script.

Earlier this year, Bishop was notified that NBC wasn't going to renew his half-hour comedy show.

"Naturally I was disappointed," he said, "because I thought we had hit a pretty good stride. I thought the premise of having me a television comedian was valid, the cast worked well together, and the guest stars were important and well-integrated into the plots."

NBC still wanted Bishop—but as emcee of an hour variety show. Bishop was willing, but he balked at signing for only 18 shows.

"I knew I couldn't assemble the best kind of staff unless I had a guarantee of 26 shows," he said. "The networks often make a decision about dropping a show after four or five have been on the air. You might not be able to hit your stride with a variety show until you've done 10 or more. By that time it would be too late."

Bishop held firm. So did NBC. CBS was making overtures for the half-hour comedy or an hour variety show for the 1965-66 season. But Bishop saw the difficulty of reassembling the cast a year hence.

Bishop resigned himself to hitting the saloon circuit once more and signed for four weeks in Las Vegas beginning in August.

On a Friday at 3, NBC made its final decision: 18 weeks of the variety hour or nothing. Bishop took nothing. At 3:30 CBS called and wanted the half-hour comedy for 18 weeks the coming season. Nix, said Bishop it's got to be 26.

"I'm going out to play golf," he told his agents. "Don't try to call me unless the answer is yes." The answer came at his home at 6: Yes.

The show is slotted vs. the last half-hour of powerful "Bonanza," which makes Bishop suspect NBC engineered the whole thing. But he's willing to take his chances: "I think the show is better at 9:30 instead of the earlier spot we had; we're aimed more at adults than kids."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

AT A CHILDREN'S pet show last fall, a duck won the title "happiest pet." When the pets lined up for awards, said duck broke loose from his young mistress and in a trice ate up his competition: a frog, two worms, and a cricket. The judges thereupon awarded the "happiest pet" a second title: "most hungry."

Old Man Babcock was inching his dilapidated jalopy down Main Street when a traffic officer signalled him to halt. "Don't worry, pop," said the officer reassuringly. "I just want to see what it feels like to put my foot on a running board again."

Three letters from mail-order customers unearthed by Juliet Lowell in "Dear Man of Affairs":

- "I received your insolent letter asking for payment. Enclosed is my check. I will never buy one cent's worth of merchandise from you again. P.S. This is the kind of letter I'd have written if I had the money to pay you."
- "Your point is no good. I put some on a bench and my daughter's boy friend sat on it and got his Sunday suit all green. Now he's mad and I still have Suzie on my hands."
- "Please send me a bathing suit I can wear in the bathtub. Make it good-looking as my neighbors are a very nosy lot."

From Above the Battle

By John Chamberlain

The California battle between Senator Goldwater and Governor Rockefeller is cresting in a wave of bitterness and snarls about bad faith, and it is virtually impossible at this point to see how the internal bleeding can be staunched in time for the campaign for the Presidency is concerned. The sense of disaster which now pervades thoughtful Republicans will remain no matter who wins the technical right to dispose of California's delegates to the July 13 Republican convention.

Goldwater may try to be good-natured about things, and Rockefeller may reiterate that he likes Barry as a man, but their followers will be lavish with recriminations if and when debacle strikes. The recriminations will not reckon with the fact that history, in this case, has decreed its own logic, a logic that has been a long time in the making. The fact of the matter is that two sets of swing votes have been created in this country, and one or the other is ready to operate for the benefit of Lyndon Johnson no matter what happens in California.

To make the analysis clear, let us assume that Rocky wins the California delegates. Let us assume, further, that he goes on to get the nomination. The result in this case would be to harden a sizable margin among conservatives in their belief in the "plot" theory of Republican history. This theory explains events since 1940 in terms of a supposedly inexorable "eastern liberal" Establishment which has its way at convention time no matter what the people in the back country want. A columnist knows how persistent this theory is simply by reading his mail. Whether Willie was nominated by a real tide or by a phony telegram blitz, or whether Taft was legitimately undone or cheated out of a nomination by a false cry of "thief," are not the points at issue here. The main point is that the belief in the "plot" theory can cause votes to be withheld next November. That they will be withheld from a Rockefeller I am sure.

Let us assume, on the other hand, that Goldwater gets the nod in California and goes on to become his party's choice. Since I don't think Goldwater is an extremist, I would welcome this. But my analytical mind tells me that the liberal publicists who have been busy floating the successive booms for Scranton, Lodge and Rockefeller will, in the event of a Goldwater nomination, go about their business of drumming up support for Lyndon Johnson.

To forestall being whipsawed by the two sets of swing votes, Republican pros like Ray Bliss of Ohio are manifestly hoping to come up with an acceptable neutral candidate at San Francisco. But neutralism, in 1964, is not a good victory bet, either. Should Nixon be chosen, the Republicans would be going to the starting gate with a man who is in every way sound on foreign policy. But Lyndon Johnson, as the incumbent in the White House, is in a position to anticipate Nixon on anything that promises popularity in foreign moves. Thus Nixon's strong point can be negated. His weak point, that of being a two-time recent loser, would remain to dog his efforts.

As for any other neutral — a Scranton, a Thurston Morgan — how can the two sets of swing votes be held for a party by picking a candidate who has no great national following?

It could be said that the Republicans have brought themselves to their current low estate by their unwillingness to reward party men (see Henry J. Taylor's fine novel, "The Big Man"), for light on this, and by their refusal to abide by civilized rules of internal party warfare. Quite regardless of who started the party on its down grade, there seems to be no way of bringing those who are yelling "Bircher extremist" together with those who are shouting "Establishment plot." They face each other as over a chasm, each ready to swing away. The truth is that there is no Republican main stream.

I hate to be cast in the role of Candor Kid in saying all this. And I hope, against my analytical judgment, that the events of the next few months will force me to eat my words.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—Business optimism — sometimes as rare as a day in June — today is busting out all over.

Many industries are again revising upward their earlier estimates. They look for this month to add new strength to a business upswing already setting records.

Other industries whose earlier estimates — largely tuned to the federal income tax cut — proved over optimistic are now pinning their hopes on a bigger than usual increase in fall business.

And even some of the industries that usually are plagued by a summer slowdown for vacations or lagging consumer interest in their products or services are saying as June starts that this year's seasonal downturn may be shorter and shallower than customary.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The gentle art of nose picking, in children as well as adults, is often surreptitious and can even be performed with relative dignity and social grace by the use of a handkerchief to conceal the indicate operation. BUT when the result is a gush of blood, many people react to this sight with terror and anxiety.

When this happens, you usually find as many suggestions for "instant control" as there are friends in the room. These "cures" range from placing a copper penny under the lip to a bunch of cold keys at the nape of the neck.

There is a practical and simple procedure for stopping the average nose bleed. Pack the nostril firmly with a goodsized piece of dry absorbent cotton. After the cotton has been inserted, press the nostrils together for five to ten minutes. This will almost always stop a simple nose bleed.

Most nose bleeds result from a break in one of the many small blood vessels that lie on the surface of the nasal septum (the wall of cartilage which divides one side of the nose from the other).

Crusts that sometimes develop in the nose, especially in children, often become hard and dry. Picking these crusts off the wall of the nasal septum may cause nose bleeds.

Keeping the inside of the nostrils lubricated with a light oil or vaseline helps prevent the formation of crusts, and softens crusts which have already formed. A vaporizer, too, diminishes dryness of the nose by increasing a room's humidity.

Of course, severe nasal bleeding can sometimes occur in association with general diseases. But this is one of the least frequent causes. It is highly unfair to one's emotions to consider that nose bleeds always mean serious trouble.

Repeated episodes of epistaxis (nose bleeds) deserve specialized study to discover the underlying cause.

When a nose bleed occurs, the following simple emergency measures will usually help to control the bleeding:

1. Pack the nose, as previously described. Press the nostrils together. Keep the cotton in for at least an hour. Nature's protective blood clot may be dislodged if the cotton is removed too quickly.
2. If the bleeding persists and your own physician is not available, doctors in the emergency room of any hospital are equipped to offer medical assistance.
3. Cauterization of the broken vessel with silver nitrate or electric sparking is painless and easily performed when necessary.
4. Determine the basic cause of the nose bleed. In all likelihood, it will prove to be of minor importance.

Even a small amount of bleeding can be disturbing and terrorizing to the patient and onlookers. It should be encouraging to know that most nose bleeds are of simple origin and easily controlled.

WASHINGTON (AP)—"Santa Claus dreams or rolled up sleeves," Sen. Barry Goldwater said last January. "We have to make a choice." He was criticizing President Johnson's anti-poverty program.

He accused Johnson of "Santa Claus promises" and in that same speech revealed perhaps as much about his own "rolled up sleeves" attitude toward life in America as anything he has ever said.

"We are told that many people lack skills and cannot find jobs because they did not have an education. That's like saying people have big feet because they wear big shoes."

"The fact is that most people who have no skill have had no education for the same reason—low intelligence or low ambition."

But this speech did more than criticize Johnson. It served to illustrate an essential point for the Arizona Republican. Just a few days before he had announced he would seek the Republican presidential nomination.

It had taken him some time to reach this decision, although for years he had been whipping up and down and across the landscape making speeches which endeared him to the Republican professionals.

As he declared last fall, over those years he had said a "thousand times I'm going to run for the Senate, nothing more." Now, by his decision, he was giving Republicans of all shades a choice.

Did the highly conservative Goldwater represent their thinking or did they want a more moderate or liberal candidate for president? Republican voters have since decided against him in a couple of presidential primary contests.

In New Hampshire he finished second behind Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam, who didn't even say he wanted the nomination, and more recently in Oregon where he finished third behind New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Lodge.

Nevertheless, despite these defeats, Goldwater's years of work for the party had won him broad support from the professionals and he had accumulated a huge number of other states' delegates going to the nominating convention next month.

Yet, Tuesday's California primary contest between him and Rockefeller may be the turning point for Goldwater. If he loses, it could finish him. If he wins, his delegate strength going into the convention will look overwhelming.

But looks are not a certainty and Goldwater could still lose in the convention for this is an unusual situation for Republicans.

This is the first time since 1952 that they have had a chance to choose between a highly conservative candidate and a more moderate one. Then it was between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. Taft lost.

Since Eisenhower ran again in 1956, and won, the Republicans didn't have to make any choices until 1960 when Vice President Richard M. Nixon got the nomination. There wasn't really any choice that year. Nixon had it sewed up.

Nixon, unlike Goldwater, was a moderate Republican. But so was his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy. This made their contest for the presidency in 1960 not one of issues but of personality.

Although Kennedy won by a squeak, by the time he died he had gained enormous public approval, which raises a question apt to get overlooked: would the country be ready to switch so soon to someone as vastly conservative as Goldwater?

Johnson, certain to be the Democratic candidate, doesn't think so. He not only has identified himself with Kennedy's programs but has sought to outdo him in the Kennedy-kind of pep talk about the future.

One thing is sure: a Goldwater-Johnson contest would give the country its clearest choice between the conservative and liberal attitudes it has had in more than a generation.

Today is Monday, June 1, the 153rd day of 1964. There are 213 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Most Leaders are Past 70

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time wields a slow ax on the leaders of the world, as the death this week of India's Prime Minister Nehru at 74 showed. He had been India's No. 1 man for 17 years.

The average age of 12 of them is 68 but most are over 70. Only two are under 60: President Johnson, 55, and the president of the United Arab Republic, Gamal Abdel Nasser, 46.

It's their tenacity that sticks out, for a majority of the 12 were either in a leadership position during World War II or close to the center of power at that time.

So it's no wonder if the world seems to have been rocking along on the same road for years or that often what happens seems like a rerun of what happened or was said before.

True, the three giants of the wartime days are gone from the scene, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Josef Stalin, both dead, and Winston Churchill, who stepped down as Britain's prime minister in 1955. He was 80 then and showing his age.

But since the war only the United States and Britain, and for a while France, changed leaders regularly or frequently.

This country has had four presidents since Roosevelt. Britain has had five prime ministers, including Churchill, since he led Britain in the war. Until President Charles de Gaulle took over, French government changes looked like a flapjack contest.

Konrad Adenauer was West Germany's chancellor from 1949 until, at 87, last year he stepped down and Ludwig Erhard, now 67, succeeded him.

Here are the rest of the 12 leaders, with their age and the time they have been in control, even though they haven't always had the same titles:

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev, 70, since 1958, but the boss-man before that. He was one of the right-hand men of Stalin, who died in 1953.

In 1947 the State Department reduced the Library of Congress' missing books by one when it returned a German book it had checked out in 1919 for use at the Paris Peace Conference.

De Gaulle, 73, since 1959. He led the Free French during the war and was president for 18 months after it. Then he went into retirement until the 1950's.

Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-shek, 76, the head man of China from 1928 until in 1949 the Red Chinese drove him to Formosa. There he set up shop, still considering himself president of all China.

Mao Tze-tung, 70, leader of the Chinese Communists since 1927 and, although now he doesn't have a government title, he is still Mr. Big on the mainland.

Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco, 71, the boss of Spain since 1937.

Portugal's Prime Minister Antonio Salazar, a 70-year-old dictator, in control since 1932.

Yugoslavia's President Marshal Tito, 72, leader of the Yugoslavs against the Germans in World War II and in charge from then until now.

Indonesia's President Sukarno, 63, top man there since 1947.

Britain's Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 61, in office since he succeeded Harold Macmillan in 1963.

Views on Television — Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — When "More, More, More, More..." an original comedy started on NBC Sunday night, it seemed for the first few minutes we were going to see one of those mad, gay shows reminiscent of the good old movie days when Robert Montgomery was always a rich playboy or debonair Cary Grant was pursuing Irene Dunne or Katharine Hepburn.

It started with a poor but happy young couple just making out on $6,000 a year, worrying over bills and a leaky coffee pot. Suddenly they have a $500,000 windfall and the husband sets out to really enjoy spending his money.

So far, so good. But the spending device was overdone and got out of hand. The rest of the show was less comedy than a burlesque.

Our hero started buying a Rembrandt "with a little Van Gogh on the side to brighten it up," an apartment house and a pair of English limousines for his girl friend, a baby elephant and every dress in Christian Dior's collection for his wife.

Then his wife got into the act, acquiring a prize fighter, a night club, a bank, one sable and 15 mink coats.

The clincher and big gag was when she asked her husband how many golf clubs made a set. Fourteen, he replied.

Then in a voice like Jane's in the "Easy Aces," she said "Goody, then I think I'll buy those in Connecticut."

That golf club-buying joke is just a little bit older than Milton Berle and started life as an early Texas millionaire story.

The whole show was a bit of misguided fluff, and very hard to wind up.

Network television's passionate preoccupation with the California primary election Tuesday is beginning to have a strange effect on some East Coast viewers—3,000 miles from the action.

The networks seems to be giving the democratic senatorial contest, with local issues and political implications, almost as much attention as they are awarding the pitched battle for the 86 delegates to the Republican national convention.

All-Purpose Potatoes Rank High

By ALICE DENHOFF

Toward the end of the 19th century, America developed a white potato that was the whitest-skinned variety ever seen. In some places it was known as the "White Rose." In other places, it was known by other descriptive names such as "American Giant" or "Wisconsin Pride."

Today, this exceptional all-purpose potato ranks high in the American potato world — one of the Big Ten. California soil and climate are ideal for growing this type of potato.

That is why 77 per cent of the potatoes grown in California are "Long whites." Oregon, Washington, Montana, and Idaho also grow this fine potato, but California is the big supplier.

From the beginning of May through July, these handsome potatoes are in the midst of the largest of three annual crops. Watch for and make use of this aristocratic potato — so long, white and clean-looking. This is because they have been carefully washed in large modern packing plants, and quickly handled and packed.

ALPHONSO POTATOES

3/4 c. diced green pepper
2 c. cooked, cubed potatoes
3/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. black pepper
2-3 c. milk

3 tsp. grated Parmesan cheese
Combine first 5 ingredients in saucepan. Cover and simmer 15 min. Turn into buttered 9-in. pie plate. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake 10 to 15 min. at 350 degrees F.
Serves 4 to 5.

HOME STYLE POTATOES

4 or 5 medium potatoes
1/2 tsp. salt
1-16 tsp. pepper
3 tsp. butter or margarine
Peel and slice potatoes 1-16 in. thick. Mix with salt and pepper. Spread in large, shallow baking pan. Dot with butter. Bake at 400 degrees F. until brown, stirring occasionally. Place under broiler to brown, 5 to 10 min.
Serves 6.

CHEESE BAKED POTATOES

(Over the barbecue grill)
6 large baking potatoes
1/2 lb. Cheddar cheese
6 pats butter or margarine
Salt to taste
Black pepper to taste.
Pare potatoes. Cut 3 cross-wise wedges 1/4 in. thick in each potato cutting almost to bottom of each. Place in square of aluminum foil. Cut cheese into 18 slices 1/4-in. thick and as long as potato is wide. Insert cheese slice in each wedge. Top with pat of butter or margarine. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Wrap in foil, making sure to overlap foil at top of potato. Turn up ends and fold against potato.

Bake until tender over barbecue grill, turning to bake uniformly. Or, if desired, bake potatoes at 350 degrees F 50 to 60 min., or until tender.

Serve in foil, turned back and crimped around bottom of potato to make it look attractive. All three recipes are really extra good with the "long whites."

Give that bride-to-be a cake shower. Cake pans in various sizes, wire racks to hold the cakes when they come out of the oven, wooden mixing spoons, a cake tester, a flour sifter — these are all inexpensive gifts that a new cook who like to bake will enjoy having. And have each guest bring her favorite cake recipe!

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Here Is the Answer!

DEAR ABBY: Here are the facts: Ten years ago a very attractive 19-year-old girl divorced her husband shortly before her baby was born. She then proceeded to support herself. She is now almost 30. Two years ago she met a well-to-do, 42-year-old bachelor who became interested in her immediately. He occupied every spare minute she had, took her on trips and bought her expensive gifts. But he has never mentioned marriage. This young woman does not want to go with him indefinitely, and if he will not eventually marry her she doesn't want to waste any more time on him. What advice would you give this woman?

CLOSE FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: I would advise her not to give him up until the 4th of July. If he still hasn't mentioned marriage, she should put a firecracker under him in the form of a direct question. And if he doesn't marry her by Hallowe'en, she should find herself another spook.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman, 44 years of age. I was married by my husband died. I own my own home and have no children. My brother, 36, has shared my home for the past four years. He is a rather shy person and doesn't go out much. My problem is this: For the past two years I have been keeping company with a gentleman of whom I am very fond, and he insists it is morally wrong for my brother and me to live together! We argue constantly about this and it makes me very nervous. My brother and I both work and I can't for the life of me see what's morally wrong in our living together. It's a very large house and there would be no reason for my brother to take a room elsewhere when I own this empty house. He also takes care of my lawn and I don't have the worry of living all alone.

QUESTION MARK
DEAR QUESTION: Your friend should get his mind out of the gutter. Could it be that your brother's living with you has cramped your friend's style because he'd prefer that you be completely unchaperoned? When one sees dirt, it's sometimes in one's own eye.

DEAR D.S.S.: It's hardly serious enough for the FBI. Just assume the clippings were sent by someone who NOSE you very well.

Meeting Scheduled

The Child Advancement Club will meet 8 p. m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. C. H. Steinhauser, Jackson Twp.

DEAR ABBY: I happen to be one of those STINKERS who has been a heavy smoker for over 40 years, and I have enjoyed every puff. I got three clippings in the mail of your column where that person wrote in to say that people won't quit smoking because of the lung cancer fear, but they might quit if somebody told them that all smokers just plain stink! I never knew that I stank. How can I find out who sent those clippings?

D.S.S.
DEAR D.S.S.: It's hardly serious enough for the FBI. Just assume the clippings were sent by someone who NOSE you very well.

How Weather Looks Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here is the official U.S. Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather:

Rain was general over Ohio Sunday with most amounts near a tenth of an inch. Rain was still falling this morning along the Ohio River and in east central counties.

6 Ohioans Are Rescued In Lake Erie

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The lives of six Ohioans were saved in dramatic rescues in Lake Erie Sunday.

While his 7-year-old son and two other men clung to an overturned motorboat, Raymond C. Melvin, 31, of Cleveland dog-paddled three miles to get help.

OSU Is Given Tract For Mansfield Branch

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two alumni have given Ohio State University a 50-acre tract of land for its proposed Mansfield branch campus. University President Novice G. Fawcett said today.

Fawcett said the land, valued at $25,000, was donated by Richard R. Stander, president of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving Co., and his father, Carl H. Stander. The land is located in Madison Township northwest of Mansfield and adjoins the east edge of the branch campus site.

Melvin, his son and Charles Poling, 32, and Walter H. Hansen, 59, were fishing three miles off Euclid Beach when their boat capsized.

Melvin spent two hours in the water before being picked up 200 yards off Euclid Beach and directed rescuers to the others. All four were treated for exposure.

Loyde Hagerman, 37, of Akron leaped off his boat into the lake to rescue his 12-year-old son, Michael, and blacked out as soon as he hit the cold water. Michael, kept afloat by a life jacket, held his unconscious father following the boating accident in the water off Gem Beach near Catawba Island. Both were rescued by three men in another boat. Neither required hospitalization.

Drivers Leave Scene of '500'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The USAC racing fraternity began moving its cars and equipment to Milwaukee today for the 100-miler there next Sunday, enriched by the biggest purse ever paid for the Indianapolis 500 but impoverished by the loss of two outstanding drivers in the 48th Memorial Day grind.

Charging A.J. Foyt Jr. and his Old Betsy Offenhauser got the lion's share of $153,650 from the $506,625 total.

The first closed circuit telecast of the Memorial Day event showed veteran Eddie Sachs plowing into the side of rookie Dave MacDonald's ultra-light car and causing a gasoline explosion that killed them both.

The remarkable live television show contributed nothing to the purse, which was only $12,959 more than last year, when Parnelli Jones picked up the previous record winner's share.

Anton (Tony) Hulman Jr., Indianapolis Motor Speedway owner, said the closed circuit TV "about broke even" financially but it was considered a success.

It should make a substantial contribution to the purse in the future, he added.

The crowd, probably a record last Saturday but not disclosed, was estimated from 260,000 up to an unlikely 350,000.

A large proportion of it saw the great ball of fire that erupted on the second lap near the upper end of the main straightaway. Many felt the heat and inhaled the smoke as five other cars piled into the inferno and were blasted from the race.

The race was halted and restarted for only the second time since the 500 was inaugurated in 1911. The other stop in 1926 was because of rain.

The hard-driving Foyt, three times USAC national champion and the 1961 Memorial Day winner, gunned his supposedly obsolescent front-engine Sheraton-Thompson Special into first place on the 55th lap, after the more glamorous new equipment had washed out.

Rodger Ward, twice winner of the event, made the best showing with one of the new rear-engine Fords, taking the $56,925 second money. He had to make five pit stops three more than he planned and three more than Foyt needed.

Scott Jimmy Clark and teammate Dan Gurney, in the new Lotus-Fords, were the victims of imported tires that began shredding chunks of rubber.

Bobby Marshman, driving a year-old Lotus with a new Ford engine, set a 90 one-lap record of 156.646 — faster than Foyt qualified with the track all to himself, 154.672. Then Marshman sheered off an oil tank plug and had to retire after 35 laps.

Parnelli Jones and Foyt had an interesting duel for a while in similar Indy roadsters but the fuel tank of Jones' Agajani-Bowes Special blew up in a pit stop and he was lucky to escape with minor burns. After that it was all Foyt for the last 146 laps.

Only 12 cars were running at the end and four of them were driven by rookies, including Johnny White of Warren, Mich., who took the special Rookie of the Year award for finishing fourth behind veteran Lloyd Ruby.

Ward had the only Ford-powered car that finished among seven starters. Factors other than engine trouble eliminated five of them and veteran Eddie Johnson was stranded by a faulty oil pump.

The first four finishers exceeded Jones' year-old record average of 143.137 m.p.h., topped by Foyt's 147.350.

The three Studebaker-Novis shared the ill fortunes of the Lotus-Fords although Art Malone limped to 11th place in one of them.

There was some agitation in the garages, right after the race, to outlaw the high-octane gasoline that burned violently after the collision of the Sachs and MacDonald Ford-powered cars. The possibility undoubtedly will be discussed at the USAC rules committee meeting in September.

Foyt's car was owned by Bill Ansted, who had been trying to win for 15 years, and Shirley Murphy, Indianapolis business-

Ruby won $35,650 for third place in the Forbes Watson-Offy roadster; White $20,700 for fourth in the Delmer Watson roadster; Johnny Boyd $17,625 for fifth in the Vita Fresh Kuzma roadster; Bud Tingstad $15,375 for sixth in the Federal Engineering Trevis roadster; Dick Rathmann $13,300 for seventh in the Chapman Watson roadster; rookie Bob Harkey $12,200 for eighth in the Weir Watson roadster; rookie Bob Wentz $11,350 for ninth in the Morecroft Trevis roadster and Bobby Grim $10,000 for 10th in the Vatis Kurtis roadster.

Ebenhack Wins Four at Scioto Downs

Emmett Ebenhack, Pickaway County's winningest harness horse driver in 1963, is off to a good start at Scioto Downs this season.

In two nights of racing, Ebenhack has reined four winners in six drives.

On Friday he was behind Sally Jean in the fifth race with a time of 2:04.4. In the ninth he brought Jane Lind in first in 2:06.1.

Saturday night Ebenhack was right back in the winner's circle with Lavender Gene in the third race. The winning time was 2:08.4. In the sixth race he reined his own Abbe Vo to a win in 2:03.4.

JIM ARLEDGE of Circleville, driving Berry Mite owned by Dick and Joe Asher of New Holland, won the eighth race in 2:02.2.

Arledge brought Desert Sand in third in the seventh race Saturday and was behind Dixie Crystal finishing second in the second race. Friday night, Arledge brought Hideaway Pat in to a third place finish.

Pitchers with the Los Angeles Angels show a 57-64 record for major league efforts in 1963.

Circleville Legion Loses Both Ends of Twin Bill

Circleville American Legion Post 134 dropped a double-header Saturday at Ted Lewis Park to Lancaster, losing the first tilt 8-6 in nine innings and the second, 8-1.

In the first game, Lancaster scored eight runs on 12 hits — one of which was an extra base blow.

Raymond started for Lancaster, but departed after the locals cracked him for six runs in the fifth frame. He fanned five and walked five during his stint, allowing five hits.

Speaks took the mound with no outs in the fifth and staved the rally for Lancaster. He completed the game and tossed six strikeouts, one walk and gave up three hits.

Sudden Sam Helps Indians To Win Pair

CLEVELAND (AP)—Sudden Sam got back in the nick of time.

Sam McDowell, the young Cleveland Indians' southpaw who won eight straight games after being sent to Portland of the Pacific Coast League this spring, was recalled Saturday and hustled to join the Tribe at Washington.

He was thrown into action to finish a weird first game of a doubleheader Sunday, and the Indians came through with a 9-6 victory. Then the Tribe gave Gary Bell solid support with a 14-hit attack to take the second game 8-3.

McDowell, the bonus boy the Indians paid more than $100,000 to get four years ago, took over from Jim (Mudcat) Grant in the fifth after the Senators erased a 5-0 Cleveland lead to tie up the game.

Sudden Sam struck out Jim King to end that inning. It was the first of six strikeouts for the lefty over 3-13 innings. McDowell gave up only two hits, but one of those was Moose Skowron's homer, which put the Senators ahead 6-5 in the eighth.

Washington reliever Ron Kline got the first two Indians in the ninth, and what happened then shouldn't happen to anybody. Dick Howser singled to keep the Tribe's hopes alive. The knuckleballer threw three strikes at Vic Davallilo, but Mike Brumley couldn't hold the ball after the third strike, and Davallilo raced to first in time.

Leon Wagner rapped a single to right, scoring Howser—giving Leon four runs batted in for the game—and Davallilo scored on Max Alvis' bunt single. A double by John Romano scored two more runs, making a total of four unearned runs.

als but was forced to leave in the fourth. He fanned three, walked three and allowed six runs on seven hits. Ferguson came in and was charged with the loss when he issued a single walk and triple in the ninth frame. He whiffed 3 and walked two.

Lancaster's second sacker, Kern, was a thorn in the locals' side. He banged out four hits in six tries and scored a run. He did the most damage by banging in the two winning runs with a three-bagger in the ninth.

Circleville mustered all their counters in the fifth frame with eight hits, two of which were for extra bases.

Hodge Dade and Skip Lutz paced the locals at the plate. Both went two for four and each scored a run. Dade swatted a double and Arnie Gabriel connected for a triple.

In the second game, the locals couldn't touch Lancaster hurler McGrew. He fired a four-hitter, but missed a shutout when he overthrew first in an attempted pick-off on Dade who had singled. Chet Iery then laced a pitch for a single which scored Dade. McGrew fanned seven and walked three.

Jeff Lutz threw for the local post and was charged with the loss. He lasted five innings before retiring in favor of Iery who finished the game.

Lutz walked 8 batters, fanned four, and gave up 8 runs on 5 hits. He was charged with two wild pitches and two passed balls in his trek.

Iery came in, and allowed three hits, walked one, fanned two.

The visitors were the terror of the base paths in the second game as they pilfered four times.

PHIBUS hurt the locals with two hits and two runs in two turns at the plate. The pesky shortstop walked and scored in the second, had a single and stolen base in the third, garnered a single, stolen base and run scored in the fifth and banged a fielders choice in the sixth.

Dade managed two of the four hits collected by the locals. He also scored the lone run. Iery and Dave Bass swatted a single each to round out the Circleville attack.

Kansas Is Winner Of New Bremen Race

NEW BREMEN, Ohio (AP) — Jud Larson of Kansas City beat out 13 challengers to win the U.S. Auto Club 30-lap feature race for $850 in prize money Sunday. His time for the 15-mile course was 10:28.2.

Larson was driving for A. J. Foyt, who was at the track but said he was too tired to race so soon after winning Saturday's Indianapolis "500."

CADET PROMOTED — John E. Grigg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Grigg, 905 Atwater Ave., has been promoted to the rank of Cadet Lieutenant Colonel, Regimental Executive Officer of the Virginia Tech Corps of Cadets. Duties of the new officer are to assume the command in the absence of the Regimental Commander. Grigg is also a member of the Arnold Air Society, National Honor Society of Scabbard and Blade and a member of the color guard 1963-64. He is pictured above, second from the left, with other staff officers of the corps.

Johnson . . . Church Scheduled For Completion In Jefferson Area

trial run, however—perhaps because it was too reminiscent of the Roosevelt and Truman labels.

"The great society" presumably fits better with Johnson's desire to be viewed as a "president of all the people"—a sort of non-partisan leader who espouses causes aimed at unifying the nation.

Johnson bore down hard on the unity theme in his commencement address Saturday at the University of Texas.

Proclaiming a turning point in the national history, he envisioned a choice between two roads—one leading to "The Great Society" and the other "to a legacy of despair and degradation."

In a sense, the key items in the Johnson program are an outgrowth of his past. The poverty program is an example.

This package was no more than a packet of study papers when Johnson took office. But it was something he could grab hold of—because it promised to be popular, relatively noncontroversial and ambitious.

Most important, perhaps, Johnson could have faith in an embryo antipoverty program because of his experiences in Texas.

One of the institutions of which he is proudest is the Pedernales Valley electric cooperative back in his home country. He was a moving spirit in the creation of this electric system, which transformed the economy of his region.

In similar fashion, he operated a job retraining program as Texas director of the National Youth Administration during the depression. This, too, helped boost the local economy.

1,000 May Attend Governor's Parley

CLEVELAND (AP)—The turnout at this year's Governor's Conference in Cleveland may be the biggest of all its 56 meetings, according to Brevard Cribfield, permanent conference secretary from Chicago. He estimated Sunday night that close to 1,000 could attend the conference here from June 6 to 10.

The 54 governors of states and territories, with wives, staffs and guests amount to 567 so far, he said. The press corps—news, television and radio media—now stands at 336 with about 75 more still unlisted, he added.

Barbiturates Case Heard In Court

Arthur Gordon Fuller, charged with the use of barbiturates by the Ohio State Highway Patrol, was fined $500 and costs Friday by Municipal Court Judge Sterling M. Lamb.

Fuller was also handed a one-year sentence in the county jail by the judge.

However, $250 of the fine and six months of the jail sentence were suspended. Judge Lamb noted that Fuller, in a statement given to Ohio State Highway Patrol, admitted he was a habitual user of barbiturates.

The statement was admitted as evidence in court with consent of the defendant, according to the judge.

JUDGE LAMB said he would reconsider the sentence in the event Fuller would consult the proper authorities and undergo a rehabilitation program.

The defendant made no statement at the time of the hearing.

More than 400 persons were present for Saturday evening's annual Memorial Day Hog Roast at the local Hall-Adkins American Legion Post.

Two hogs, with a combined weight of about 500 pounds, were placed over hot coals at midnight Friday under the direction of Hewitt Cromley. They were declared ready for consumption at 5 p. m. Saturday.

According to Cromley, about 400 pounds of charcoal were used for the roasting.

Needed to complete the annual Legion feast were 150 pounds of potato salad and 18 gallons of baked beans.

Making a big hit with the younger set during the evening were free pony rides. The horses were provided by William Kellstadt.

Mother of Dead Soldier Deplores Poor Equipment

MADISON, Ohio (AP)—The mother of a soldier killed in a recent South Viet Nam helicopter crash says she's not bitter that her son lost his life while serving his country but "I don't like the way he died."

Mrs. Mariettae of Thompson Sunday night called for a full disclosure of the U. S. serviceman's role in Viet Nam and of the "help and equipment he is getting from home."

"I know he was ready to give his life for his country if need be," she said in an interview. "But for him to die senselessly, for a reason like that, is unbearable."

Her son, Pfc. Albert L. Shimek, 29, was one of three Americans killed in the April 11 crash which also claimed the lives of eight Vietnamese. The Iroquois UH1B helicopter went down after reportedly losing part of its tail assembly.

Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes said last week that eight Americans have been killed in Viet Nam so far because of structural failures in old CH21 helicopters now being replaced by the Iroquois.

Although the cause of the April 11 crash is still unknown, Ailes has said an investigation showed "possible structural problems were revealed which may have contributed to the accident."

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has termed reports about whether obsolete equipment is being used in Viet Nam and causing casualties as "absolutely without foundation." After the April crash, he said, the 32 other Iroquois choppers were modified and grounded for a short time for inspection of their tail booms.

Shimek, in the Air Force during the Korean conflict, enlisted in the Army last November. A medical corpsman, he had been in Viet Nam only 16 days.

In his last letter home his mother quoted her son as saying in part:

"Boy, this is the stinkiest damn place I was ever in. Its worse than Korea."
